

- 1. Having caught sight of the troublesome thieves, the shopkeeper, a man of very little character, had secretly poured poison into the cups of everyone sitting with his enemies.

main clause:

subject: _____ subj. gender: _____ verb: _____

verb tense: _____ direct object: _____

identify "having caught sight of" _____ modifies: _____

identify "of very little character" _____

identify "sitting" _____ modifies: _____

identify "secretly" _____

Vocabulary Help: caupō,, fūr, homō, sēcrētus, , fundō, pōculum, omnis, sedeō, suus, inimīcus

- 2. The shepherd, having been ordered by his powerful father to obey the orders of the soldiers more swiftly, immediately threw down the letter which he had wanted to give to the Greek slave and ran into the river.

main clause:

subject: _____ verbs: _____ and _____ verb tenses: _____

direct object: _____ identify "by his powerful father" _____

relative clause:

relative pronoun: _____ antecedent: _____ subject: _____

verb: _____ verb tense: _____ direct object: _____

Vocabulary Help: pastor, pater, mīles, dēficiō, litterae, -ārum(pl)., servus, Graecus, dō, volō, flūmen, currō