

Nihil sine magno vita labore dedit mortalibus.
nothing without great life effort gave to humans

Life gave nothing to humans without great effort.

Horace, Sermones, ix, 59